Mary Wold

Visitation will be held from 1 to 8 p.m. Wednesday at Spitzer Funeral Home, 320 Sixth Ave. S.E., Aberdeen, where a prayer service will be held at 8 p.m. Visitation will continue one hour prior to services at the church.

Mary Ellen Glanville was born May 12, 1948, in Bismarck, the daughter of Harold and Mae (Sauter) Glanville. She and her younger brother and sister grew up on their family farm in Wing. Mary graduated from Wing High School in 1966.

She married Clark J. Wold on April 5, 1969, in Wing. She completed her bachelor of science in mathematics at Jamestown College in 1970. While living in Jamestown, she began her teaching career in Kensel. In 1973, Clark and Mary established their home in Bismarck where she taught math at Century High School and St. Mary's High School. Clark and Mary moved to Aberdeen in 1990. She began teaching at Simmons Junior High in 1991 and transferred to Central High School in 2000. She taught there until she became ill in 2004.

Mary was an active member of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, the National Council of Teachers of Math and the Aberdeen Education Association. She valued her many friendships and enjoyed working in the garden with her husband, cross-stitching and spending time with her children.

Grateful for having shared her life include her loving husband, Clark; one son, Christopher (fiancee, Nicole Camacho) Wold, Marietta, Ga.; one daughter, Larissa (Ryan) Laber, Eau Claire, Wis.; her mother, Mae McFerran, Bismarck; her sister, Susan Kahler, Phoenix; her sisters-in-law, Janet (Don) Kamnikar, Fort Collins, Colo., and Meryl (Jack) Atterberry, Jefferson City, Mo.; and eight nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her father, Harold Glanville; her stepfather, Pat McFerran; and her brother, Michael Glanville.

Memorials may be sent to North Plains Hospice or your local hospice agency.
